Educating the Public

Throughout 2018, TCA’s team monitored American, Turkish, and international media. TCA staff engaged with journalists through in-person meetings and by providing fact sheets and information about both history and current events regarding Turkish Americans and Turkey.

Another source of information for the general public is the TCA website, which features topical as well as in-depth information on issues concerning Turkish Americans and U.S.-Turkey relations. The website features an extensive compilation of reference materials, talking points, and resource and reading lists on Turkey.

In 2018, TCA continued its social media campaign to expand its online presence. In the last year, TCA’s Twitter and Facebook profiles reached thousands of people.
Investing in Youth and Education

TCA is proud of its pillar programs for youth that are designed to enrich Turkish American participation in public affairs and to foster future generations of Turkish American leaders.

TCA WASHINGTON SUMMER INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

The TCA Washington Summer Internship Program provides young Turkish American college students and recent graduates the opportunity to work in Washington, DC as interns with members of the U.S. Congress and select non-governmental organizations and think tanks. The goal of the program is to foster young Turkish Americans’ interest in public affairs and service as well as enhance their knowledge of American political life. It also seeks to prepare future Turkish American political and community leaders.

In Summer 2018, TCA welcomed 9 young Turkish Americans from across the United States to participate in the Washington Summer Internship Program.

TCA 2018 Summer Internship Program participants worked at the following organizations: the American Turkish Council (ATC), the Turkish Industry and Business Association (TUSIAD), the Union of Chambers and Commodity Exchanges of Turkey (TOBB), the Washington Institute for Near East Policy (WINEP), the Middle East Institute (MEI), the American Turkish Association of Washington, D.C. (ATA-DC), the Turkish Heritage Organization (THO), and the Turkish Coalition of America (TCA).

As part of the Washington Summer Intern Program, TCA hosted the annual Summer Intern Orientation at its Washington, D.C. office on July 10. Interns gathered for a day of briefings about TCA, the Turkish Cultural Foundation (TCF), the Turkish American Legal Defense Fund (TALDF), The Turkish American community, and political activism and engagement in the U.S.

One of the highlights of their internship was meeting with Congressman Steve Chabot (R-OH/1st), a Co-Chair of the Congressional Caucus on the U.S.-Turkey Relations and Turkish Americans.

Since the program's inception in 2007, TCA has provided a total of 187 internship opportunities to Turkish Americans and friends of Turkey.

"My experience at The Washington Institute for Near East Policy this summer has been eye-opening on so many levels. This has been my first internship abroad, as most of mine were in Istanbul where I live, and being in the hub of politicians, change-makers, policy analysts, and professionals who work everyday to better the status quo, I wouldn't have had it any other way. I shaped my future goals and aspirations working in DC this summer, and I am very excited on what the future holds."

“My internship at the Middle East Institute this summer has been an invaluable experience for my professional development as I’ve written reports and summaries on various aspects of Turkish politics. I made many important career connections.”

- Engin Polar, 2018 Washington Summer Internship Program Participant

“I enjoyed the lunch with my congressional representative, John Garamendi. It was such a cool experience to be able to talk to and hear my representative speak on the issues about the defense industry, my district, NATO, and the US-Turkey relationship.”

The annual Turkish American Youth Leadership Congress is a program specifically geared toward involving young Turkish Americans in the U.S. political system. It offers college students, recent graduates, and young professionals of Turkish American heritage the opportunity to spend a weekend in Washington, DC learning about the U.S.-Turkey relationship, the political systems of both countries, and the importance of political advocacy in their own lives.

2017 marked TCA's fourth annual Turkish American Youth Leadership Congress. Twenty-three young Turkish Americans attended and came away inspired to take a more active role in local and national politics and to become effective representatives of the Turkish American community.

Since the program began in 2014, 105 Turkish Americans have attended the Turkish American Youth Leadership Congress. Applications for the Youth Congress open every year in July.

2017 Youth Congress delegates attended meetings and briefings with Turkish policy experts, congressional staffers, representatives from the U.S. Department of State, journalists, political activists, and leaders in the Turkish American community. They also had the chance to learn more about civic engagement from two former members of Congress, the Honorable Al Wynn (D-MD/4th, 1992-2008) and Dan Maffei (D-NY/24th, 2013-2015). Additionally, two representatives from the Council of Turkish Canadians (CTC) accompanied the delegates throughout the weekend and briefed the group on the political system of Canada and the challenges faced by the Turkish Canadian community, providing an impetus for cross-border dialogue and relationship building between Turkish Canadians and Turkish Americans.

Delegates toured the U.S. Capitol and the Turkish Ambassador's historical residence, and they attended the Maryland American Turkish Association's (MATA) Republic Day Gala celebrating the 94th Annual Turkish Republic Day. Their visit to the nation's capital was topped off with a concert to watch Pink Martini perform with the National Symphony Orchestra at the historic John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and a boat cruise brunch on the Potomac.

Over the course of the weekend, Youth Congress delegates were able to network with other young Turkish Americans while learning about the U.S.-Turkey relationship and the political systems of both countries. They engaged in an active dialogue on the state of U.S.-Turkey relations, and they learned about the role that citizens can play in policy-making as well as the steps they can take to be successful Turkish American advocates.

As in previous Congresses, the delegates were able to network and bond with their fellow Turkish Americans while hearing perspectives on the bilateral relationship between Turkey and the United States. They also engaged in active dialogue on the political systems in both countries and the current state of affairs in U.S.-Turkey relations. As for civic engagement, the delegates learned about constituents’ involvement in policy-making and the fundamentals in being successful Turkish American advocates.

Since the program began in 2014, 132 Turkish Americans have attended the Turkish American Youth Leadership Congress. Applications for the Youth Congress open every year in July.

In 2018, between January 12-14, TCA President Lincoln McCurdy and Program Director Nilsu Goren participated in the Council of Turkish Canadians’ (CTC) 10th Annual Turkish-Canadian Youth Congress in Montréal, Quebec, Canada. TCA also sponsored the travel of two Turkish American students, Ipek Duman and Pinar Gezgec, who presented on their experiences.

“Thank you so much for this amazing opportunity! I was able to meet with amazing people and experience an unforgettable TCA Youth Congress and for that I very much appreciate all of your efforts. I hope to stay in contact with TCA and all of the people I met this past weekend.”

- Andrew Yildizlar, Greenwich, CT, 2018 Turkish American Youth Congress Delegate

“This Congress has truly been extremely inspiring and eye-opening for me; I hope to always continue the tie between Turkey and the US in all of my endeavors moving forward. I also want to thank you for giving me friends I will have for a lifetime as well as for arranging once in a lifetime experiences that I will never forget.”

- Banu Gulecyuz, Chicago, IL, 2018 Turkish American Youth Congress Delegate

“It was such a great opportunity for me to learn about the issues regarding U.S.-Turkey relations and how they are handled in the independent branches of our government. It was also a wonderful opportunity to meet fellow Turkish Americans.”

- Kyle Evren Donelson, Indianapolis, IN, 2018 Turkish American Youth Congress Delegate

In 2018, TCA continued to fund the Turkish Studies Project at the University of Utah, which is directed by University of Utah Professor Dr. M. Hakan Yavuz. TCA provided this major multi-year grant to the University of Utah in 2009 to establish an academic program to examine the origins of modern ethnic cleansing, the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, and the emergence of nation states in the Balkans and the Caucasus. The grant was renewed in 2015 with an expanded geographical focus entitled “The Origins and Contemporary Challenges of Turkic Peoples.” Under the current grant term, the Project aims to explore the past histories and shaping of contemporary Turkic-majority states and their relationships with modern Turkey via scholarly work, community participation, social media, and support for new research.

The Turkish Studies Project in 2018 provided fellowships to graduate students and scholars who are undertaking research about Turkic peoples and states and their relationships with modern Turkey. The program also provided support for them to attend and present at conferences in the U.S., Turkey, and Europe and to translate scholarly material to English. The project has continued its support for the following two fellows. Hakan Erdagoz had his PhD defense in April 2018 and Perparim Gutaj had his PhD defense in November 2018.
TURKISH STUDIES PROJECT 2018 ANNUAL ACTIVITY

Academic Publications:

Ottomans and Armenians (Edward Erickson) translated and published in Russian, 2018.
- This book presents that the Ottoman government developed an evolving, 35-year, empire-wide array of counterinsurgency practices that varied in scope and execution depending on the strategic importance of the affected provinces.

The Armenians Rebellion at Van (Justin McCarthy et al.) translated and published in Russian, 2018.
- This work presents an examination of Van from the 1870s to 1919. As the authors state, “The Armenian Revolt was an integral part of the great disaster that overcame the people of the Ottoman East. The slaughter of Muslims that accompanied the Armenian revolt in Van Province inexorably led first to Kurdish reprisals on the Armenians.”

Sasun: The History of an 1890 Armenian Revolt. (Justin McCarthy) translation into Russian and publication. 2018
- The book is a serious, scholarly endeavor that is very useful for the scholars and public interested in Ottoman history, the Armenian problem and relations between different ethnic and religious groups.

Legislating Reality, Politicizing History: Contextualizing Armenian Claims of Genocide (Brendon Cannon) 2nd Edition. 2018
- This book demonstrates how the Armenian campaign to have the events of 1915 recognized as the Armenian Genocide remains the single bond possessing enough strength to bind the otherwise linguistic, geographically and religiously diverse Armenian Diaspora communities together.

Ethnic cleansing is the policy and practice of systematic removal or elimination of an unwanted ethnic group, identity, and culture, from a specific territory. The purpose is to create an ethnically pure space, using various methods including genocide. What explains ethnic cleansing across space and over time? What is the role of societal actors in the process of ethnic cleansing? When and under what conditions ethnic cleansing becomes an option for state actors? Why do some ethnic cleansing campaigns succeed and others fail to attain ethnically pure spaces? Based on a multidimensional analysis of three different case-studies (time periods) from the Balkans region, between 1804 and 2004, I build a theory that describes and explains patterns - trends and behaviors - of ethnic cleansing and conditions under which ethnic groups, identities, and cultures are targeted with forced assimilation, deportation, and elimination. Methodologically, I carry out a comparative-historical research through the examination of documents recorded by governmental and non-governmental organizations, writings of elites, oral histories, and records from the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. Empirical evidence demonstrates that modern constructed religious and racial attitudes toward unwanted ethnic groups combined with the presence or absence of great power impartiality prevail over political, economic and security concerns in explaining patterns of ethnic cleansing. The study argues that when the unwanted ethnic group is deemed (i) a religious or racial, or (ii) a religious and racial threat to national and territorial integrity, and great power impartiality is upheld, the group generally is targeted with forced assimilation. When the unwanted ethnic group is deemed a religious or racial threat to national and territorial integrity, and great power impartiality is not upheld, the ethnic group generally is targeted with deportation. Finally, when the unwanted ethnic group is deemed a religious and racial threat to national and territorial integrity, and great power impartiality is not upheld, the group generally is targeted with elimination. These trends and behaviors of ethnic cleansing represent three different kinds of violence against unwanted ethnic groups, and are closely related with intentions and fantasies to dominate and rule over specific lands, spaces, and souls. While the study highlights the processes of state making and nation building through policies and practices of forced assimilation, deportation, and elimination, it develops context-sensitive patterns of ethnic cleansing and identifies the conditions under which a pattern is preferred upon the other, by looking at the contingencies of the international context, regional undercurrents, and domestic energies that produce opportunities to cleanse and kill.
Why are some religious minorities seen as an existential threat and securitized by their state, while others turn out to be patriotic and loyal to their state? Why do states vary in their capability to incorporate Muslim minorities into national political community? The aim of this research is to examine how and why the dynamics of religious difference and national identity shape state policies toward the accommodation of minorities in secular, Christian-majority countries with large Muslim populations such as France and Russia. I argue that variation in accommodation of Muslim minorities and their incorporation into national political community are a result of unintended consequences of nation- and state building, collective memories of solidarity and violence, and globalization. To accomplish its objectives, this study adopts a multi-causal approach that accounts for the role of historical legacies on contemporary issues and those of globalization. This study argues that the varying degrees of Muslim incorporation into national political community in France and Russia can be explained by three main factors: different pathways to nation- and state-building, trajectories of collective memories that resulted from different types of colonialism, and the global diffusion of discourse over the meaning and implications of contemporary Islamic religiosity. I argue that definition of a thick national identity based on a nation-state model with collective memories of violence and racialization of Muslims combined with diffusing effects of global Islam produced a way of thinking that Islam is not compatible with French way of living. Conversely, definition of a thin national identity based on an empire-state building model with collective memories of violence and solidarity and recognition of Muslims combined with diffusing effects of global Islam produced a relatively more positive way of thinking that Islam is part of Russian national political community. I carry out a comparative historical research and employ critical juncture and path-dependency frameworks to examine these variables for each case and explain the varying degrees of state configuration of religious difference and national identity. Because my hypotheses are primarily non-quantifiable, I employ qualitative methods.
Building Bridges

TCA has enhanced its educational mission by sponsoring a diverse collection of scholarship programs.

TCA STUDY ABROAD SCHOLARSHIP FOR AMERICAN STUDENTS OF MINORITY AND HERITAGE COMMUNITIES

Through the TCA Study Abroad Scholarships for American Students of Minority and Heritage Communities program, TCA provides up to 100 scholarships per year for American students of African, Armenian, Bosnian, Filipino, Hispanic, Macedonian, and Native American descent who have been accepted to a study abroad program in Turkey, the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus, or Bosnia and Herzegovina.

In 2018, 2 scholarships were awarded, bringing the total number of scholarships awarded to 489 since this program’s inception in 2008. American minority students who receive the TCA Study Abroad Scholarship studied in International Relations and Global studies.

Scholarship recipients came from University of Texas, Austin, and Indiana University, Bloomington. They studied at Bogazici University in Istanbul, Turkey.

“No other country in the world has as much history, culture, and fantastic food as Turkey does. If you want to immerse yourself into a fascinating cultural blend of East and West, Turkey should be your destination of choice!

I would like to thank TCA so much again for this incredible opportunity! When I return to IU next week and I begin to tell everyone about my experience I will make sure to mention TCA and the generous scholarships you offer.

- Matthew Hernandez, 2018 Study Abroad Scholarship Recipient
I fell madly in love with Turkey. I never in a million years expected to enjoy my time over there as much as I did. The food was amazing!! I miss eating gozleme so much. It is the best thing I have ever tasted. Bogazici is such an amazing and beautiful university. I loved my professors and learned so much about the history of Turkey. I became friends with several students. They would take me out to restaurants and events in order for me to get the full Turkish experience. I became really close friends with another student studying abroad in Turkey. She is originally from Turkey, but grew up in Canada most of her life. Lucky for me, she speaks perfect Turkish, which really came in handy when talking to the street vendors. I am being extremely sincere when I say it was the best time of my life. On the last day, I cried so much taking the taxi to the airport. I just did not want to leave. Walking to class everyday, and seeing that spectacular view of the Bosphorus Sea was just so amazing. I developed a daily routine and became close friends with students working at a coffee shop near the school entrance. Every time they saw me walking from a distance, they would have my order ready. Like I mentioned earlier, I went to Italy and France after Turkey. Lets just say that they did not even come close to Istanbul. I would constantly compare each city I passed by to Istanbul’s authenticity and superiority. The city was just vibrant. I felt so alive being there. Everyone was extremely friendly towards me. I had no problems whatsoever. I can easily say that all I want to do now is go back to Istanbul. All my friends and family back here in the U.S. are already sick of me constantly talking about Istanbul’s greatness. They just haven’t experienced the city yet, but once they do, they, too, won’t be able to stop talking about it.

Lastly, I wanted to thank you and the Turkish Coalition of America for helping me fund my trip to Istanbul. Without your help, I would not have been able to fall in love with Istanbul, much less experience memories that I will truly treasure for the rest of my life. Also, thank you for helping me create a friendship that will stay with me forever.

HERITAGE PARTNERSHIPS

TCA established special partnerships with the Bosniak and Macedonian communities in the United States to enhance the historical heritage and contemporary bonds of friendship that the Turkish people have with their Balkan neighbors. Over the years, TCA has provided support to the Advisory Council for Bosnia and Herzegovina (ACBH) and to the United Macedonian Diaspora (UMD) to help the two organizations hire professional staff, institute new programs and events, and build their memberships and donor bases.

UMD has grown into an influential voice in the U.S. and globally, representing the interests of Macedonians worldwide. Similarly, TCA’s support to ACBH has allowed the organization to grow its presence in Washington, DC, and it has made it possible for young Bosnian Americans to intern in high profile offices in Washington, DC.

ACBH is the leading independent, non-governmental organization dedicated to promoting the interests of Bosnian Americans and advocating for a united, multi-ethnic and democratic BiH.

TCA’s long relationship with ACBH began in 2008 with a $150,000 matching grant to support ACBH’s work in Bosnian American advocacy. A TCA $100,000 grant was given in 2014 to the Marshall Legacy Institute (MLI) for the removal of land mines in BiH. This was matched by a $100,000 grant from the Office of Weapons Removal and Abatement of the U.S. State Department. In 2016 a $5,000 TCA grant supported an ACBH delegation visit to Washington, DC from two Bosnian advocacy organizations, the Association of Victims and Witnesses of Genocide and Mother’s Action of the Srebrenica and Zepa Enclaves.

Since 2008, TCA has provided 11 scholarships to Bosnian American students who study abroad in Turkey and BiH; supported several Bosnian Americans congressional internships in Washington, DC; and sponsored three Congressional Delegations to BiH (2010, 2012, and 2015). TCA also provides office space to ACBH.

Turkish American Legal Defense Fund

TCA established the Turkish American Legal Defense Fund (TALDF) in 2009 to protect and defend free speech, expression, assembly, and other constitutional or legal rights of Turkish Americans.

TALDF continued its mission this year to protect and defend free speech, expression, assembly and other constitutional or legal rights of Turkish Americans. Efforts included addressing deficiencies in proposed Massachusetts legislation that would amend the state’s public school social science curriculum in ways that would mischaracterize Turkish history and negatively impact Turkish-Americans in that state. In California, TALDF analyzed the potential impact of proposed legislation that would treat Turkish investments in the state’s public pension funds differently from investments from other nations.

The Fund provided a case analysis of a Turkish American in Los Angeles who was mistreated by a bank employee because of her national origin. They have also continued their investigation into a criminal conspiracy case that has targeted a prominent Turkish American. On an international level, TALDF produced commentary on an anti-Turkish decision by the Parliament of the Netherlands that stood in opposition to contemporary jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights and the domestic courts of France.

TALDF continued its engagement by addressing the Annual TCA Youth Congress, providing training on the American civil liberties framework and how to identify potential violations. TALDF has also compiled a summary of Turkish American civil liberties concerns to an author of upcoming scholarly work on education in ethnic communities. The Fund periodically addresses multiple threats to Turkish American civil society organizations conveyed by email as well.
In Congress

A significant component of TCA’s mission is to enhance understanding of the importance of U.S.-Turkey relations in Congress.

STRENGTHENING THE VOICE OF TURKISH AMERICANS

TCA has made it a primary objective to strengthen the voice of Turkish Americans in public affairs. TCA works to monitor legislation and issues discussed in Congress that concern the Turkish American community. TCA also regularly provides information and analysis to members of Congress and their staff on issues related to Turkey and U.S.-Turkey relations through TCA bulletins as well as through face-to-face meetings.

SUPPORTING THE CAUCUS ON U.S.-TURKEY RELATIONS AND TURKISH AMERICANS

Throughout the year, TCA works with the Turkish American community to increase the membership of the Congressional Caucus on U.S.-Turkey Relations and Turkish Americans (the Turkey Caucus). In 2018, the Turkey Caucus had 136 members, representing 41 U.S. states and five territories.

TCA worked closely with the Co-Chairs of the Congressional Caucus on U.S.-Turkey Relations and Turkish Americans; Reps. Steve Chabot (R-OH/1st), Steve Cohen (D-TN/9th), Gerry Connolly (D-VA/11th), and Pete Sessions (R-TX/32nd).

TCA engaged members of the Turkey Caucus on several occasions throughout the year. It sponsored numerous events relating to the mission of the Turkey Caucus, including facilitating the participation of Turkey Caucus members in Turkish American events, hosting meetings with members of the Turkish American community, promoting the work of its individual members, and integrating such TCA programs as its scholarship program and Washington Summer Internship Program into the members’ own constituent services.

In January, TCA President G. Lincoln McCurdy arranged meetings for the President of the Federation of International Consular Associations and Corps (FICAC) Aykut Eken of Istanbul with Congressmen Don Beyer Jr. (D-VA/8th) and Adam Kinzinger (R-IL/16th). On February 28, TCA and the Turkish Heritage Organization (THO) hosted an art exhibition and reception on Capitol Hill featuring the profiles of Ahmet Ertegun and James Baldwin, and eleven paintings by Hulis Mavruk in honor of African American History Month.

Ertegun dedicated much of his career to promoting African American musicians while also fighting for racial equality. Prominent African American novelist Baldwin lived in Istanbul in the 1960s and 70s, and finished Another Country (1962) there. Mavruk specializes in portraying African American individuals and their cultures.
